AMERICAN WOMEN FIND RELIEF

The Case of Miss Irene Crosby Is One of Thousands of Cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that it is not the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely.

Thousands of American women, however, have found relief from all monthly suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs these periods of their terrors.

Miss Irene Crosby, of 313 Charlton Street, East Savannah, Ga., writes:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a true friend to woman. It has been of great benefit to me, curing me of irregular and painful periods when everything else had failed, and I gladly recommend it to other suffering women."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising women free of charge. Thousands have been cured by so doing.

It is declared by the investigators that the fatalities resulted from contamination of the virus with the bubonic plague.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-cast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful verities, and made them remedies of known composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that he is not afraid of such exposure, and that he is not afraid to submit them to the scrutiny of the public.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for women, and that they also made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak stomach, torpid liver, or biliousness, are, in fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, was known to the Indians as a powerful purgative, and that the use of not a few of our most valuable native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prostrations, anorexia and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the system and inducing a perfect state of health. virus. Cholera virus is in constant use here and it has proved beneficial previously. It has been used in Spain in thousands of cases and with excellent results. MORE REFORM IN RUSSIA.

A Plan to Solve the Problems of Education.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—The minister of education, M. Kaufman, has just submitted to the cabinet a plan for the reform of the primary educational system of Russia, which next to the agrarian reforms is recognized as the gravest problem confronting the Russian government. The most important feature of the minister's proposals is one providing for the abandonment of the old policy, which threw hindrances in the way of efforts to spread elementary knowledge among the ignorant masses of the Russian peasantry on the ground that education means revolution. M. Kaufman recommends instead that the central government support all such efforts and assume the payment of minimum salaries to teachers in the popular schools opened by the zemstvos and other local administrations. As the greatest difficulty is in the lack of capable teachers, the minister proposes to enlarge at the state's expense the number of schools where teachers are educated. In regard to the schools for the non-Russian population, the minister proposes to permit elementary education being given to pupils in their mother tongue on the condition that the teaching on Russian history and geography must be in Russian.

JAPAN ANGRY AT FRISCO, NOT U. S.

Will Merely Direct Traffic to Other Ports for Revenge.

San Francisco, Nov. 28.—Arthur May Knapp, editor of the Daily Advertiser of Yokohama, arrived on the Siberia from the Orient Monday. Asked about the impression created in Japan by the Japanese school exclusion in San Francisco, he said he did not think it had or would ultimately lessen the cordiality of the entente existing between Japan and the United States.

The matter has attracted much attention and been discussed extensively in the vernacular press of Japan," he said, "but the impression at Tokyo when I left was that it was a purely local matter and was confined to San Francisco. No one believes that the United States wishes to discriminate against the Japanese."

"Foreigners in Japan believe that the Japanese will attempt to divert transportation from San Francisco to the other coast ports. No other form of boycott is believed to be contemplated. The foreigners, I might say, are unable to understand the attitude of San Francisco in the matter. From a purely trade viewpoint, they think that San Francisco is making a mistake."

The Times' Daily Short Story.

Found His Anchor

(Original.)

A young man trudged with a sprightly step along a dusty road. A farmer passed him and looked back. The stranger was not of the cut that was usually seen walking in those parts, such persons preferring an automobile or a carriage. Not that his clothes were especially fine; it was something in the general appearance of the young man himself.

Climbing a stone wall, he entered a wood, mounted a slight rise in the ground, then descended to a small artificial lake and crossed a rustic bridge. While leaning over a guard rail looking at some water lilies he heard a woman's voice coming from behind him:

"Strangers are not admitted to these grounds, sir."

The man turned and saw a very pretty girl shading her eyes with a red parasol from the autumn sun. Raising his hat, he replied:

"I saw no prohibition notice as I entered."

"If you had entered by the gateway, you would have seen one."

"But I didn't enter by the gate."

"For that reason I have spoken to you. Persons coming in here socially or on business don't climb the wall."

"I'm sorry to have trespassed. By your speech I judge that you own the place."

"My father rents it."

"That makes him and his family owners so far as occupying it exclusively for themselves is concerned. Don't you think it a bit selfish in you to begrudge a poor traveler the pleasure of resting in the cool shade?"

"Should we do so we would be over-run. Besides, they pull things to pieces. We are especially anxious to keep it in good order just now, for our lease is about to expire, and we wish to turn it over to the owner in first class shape."

"A very exacting person, I presume?"

"Oh, no; it is we who are particular. Mr. Chichester concerns himself very little about it."

"Chichester? What Chichester?"

"Robert, I believe."

"You don't mean it? Bob Chichester? I know him well."

The girl cast a suspicious glance at the stranger.

"You think I am imposing on you. I will describe Chichester and prove to you that I really know him."

"That wouldn't avail anything, for I never saw him myself."

"You know that he has been a student at Oxford, England?"

"Yes, I know that."

"Well, we both, being Americans, knew each other. But I didn't fancy him."

The girl's eyes flashed.

"Unfortunately he is not here to return the compliment."

"Oh, I can do that for him. His opinion of me is my opinion of him."

"Superior persons are usually disliked by their inferiors."

"Bob Chichester isn't my superior," he said, with remarkably good nature. "We're two of a kind—a pair of knaves."

"Knaves always consider other persons knaves. Perhaps that's the reason of your opinion of Mr. Chichester."

"And the reason of his opinion of me."

"I have only your word for that, and since you confess yourself a knave I give that for it." She snapped her fingers viciously.

"May I ask a reason for this defense of a man you have never seen?"

The girl hesitated. She knew the folly of chatting thus confidentially with a stranger, but being interested in defending the landlord she threw caution to the winds.

"Since renting this place my father has had nothing but misfortune and is unable to pay the whole of a year's rent due. He wrote, or, rather, I wrote for him, a full statement of the matter to Mr. Chichester, who replied with unbounded generosity, enclosing a receipt for the amount."

"Oh, you were the writer of that letter?"

"Mr. Chichester must be a confiding person to have shown it to—"

"A knave. Certainly. Didn't I tell you we were both knaves? You see, Chichester and I are a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. It was I who prompted him to write that letter."

"Well, I declare!"

"Fact. Bob declared he wouldn't do it; vowed he'd sue the account, although you said such a course would bring down a multitude of creditors on your father. I shook my fist at him and told him—"

"Stop! She stood looking at him like a fury. "Leave these grounds."

"I decline to be ordered off my own property."

"Your own property?"

"Yes, I own this place, and when I received that letter I resolved that I would come home and do my best to become the owner of the woman who could write such a letter."

She stood staring at him in a sort of dazed wonder. He advanced and put out his hand. She made no move, and he went on, rapidly feeling for hers at the same time:

"You see that I have given you a correct picture of myself; mean intelligence and noble aspirations; had one day, good the next. All I need is a chest anchor to hold me to the good. When I read your letter I knew I had found the anchor. It only remains for me to name it."

Bothered by Biliousness?

Many people are. It is a very common form of liver trouble. Properly speaking the liver is not an organ but a gland—the largest in the body and a very important one. Its office is to secrete the bile which is carried to it by the blood. When you are bilious your liver is not working right and the best thing you can do is to take because they act directly on the liver, relieve the congestion, regulate the flow of bile and carry off all the impurities.

Beecham's Pills

But the good effects of Beecham's Pills do not stop with the liver. The stomach, kidneys, bowels and blood are benefited at the same time. The skin freshens, the dark circles under the eyes disappear, the head clears and the general health is greatly improved.

Beecham's Pills are purely vegetable and a safe medicine for man, woman and child. Take them as directed whenever there is need to
